Websites are not standardized. Some websites exclude certain bibliographic information, or make it difficult to find. Click and scroll through the website to find as much bibliographic information as possible.

Article from a Website:

Format:
Author. “Title of article.” Title of Website, Editor if any, Publisher, Date of publication, URL.

Example:

You don’t need to include the name of the publisher if it is the same as the name of the website such as WebMD.
Anonymous Article from a Website:
Format:
“Title of article.” Title of Website, Editor if any, Publisher, Date of publication, URL.
Example:

Many online databases offer citation tools that will cite the article in MLA format for you. Be sure to double-check the citation created by the database, as it may contain errors.
